Commissioner Rounds entered the meeting at this point, at 6:49 p.m.

Commissioner Whatley asked if there were any Fairmount Park neighbor complaints; any beer garden issues and questioned if maybe the goals and standards were too high and that's why they weren't met according to the department.

Recreation Supervisor Ochoa confirmed she and her team made an aggressive plan to have contact with all neighbors, she made herself available to all and ensured all that was promised was followed-through. In regard to the beer garden, there was a solid plan and route; additionally, the Riverside Police Department was a strong partner and helped ensure no issues occurred. Lastly, after community contact and survey reviews, it seems the event was a success except in the areas of revenue and attendance; and the only thing that attributed to those factors is the fact that the community prefer and appreciate free events.
