A Tribute to Mark Rubin

Mark Rubin, born in Sabinov, Czechoslovakia (now the Slovak Republic) in 1937 was one of just over 100 children who were liberated after eight months from the Terezin concentration camp in March, 1945. Prior to being captured at the age of seven, he was in hiding in various parts of Slovakia for three years with his mother, brother and father. The Rubin family immigrated to the United States in 1948 and then relocated to California in 1952.

Upon arriving in the U.S. Mark and his brother were enrolled in school and learned English.
