

City of Riverside, California Legislative Platform

Introduction

The City of Riverside, named for its location beside the Santa Ana River, is the most populous city in Inland Southern California and 12th-most populous city in California. Known as the City of Arts & Innovation, Riverside is home to the Mission Inn, the Fox Performing Arts Center, the California Citrus State Historic Park, University of California Riverside, and the Cheech Marin Center for Chicano Art and Culture.

Riverside is a full-service city with municipal water and power utilities, police and fire services, an airport, numerous museums, recreational facilities and other high quality municipal programs and services. As a full-service city, Riverside recognizes the need for active legislative engagement and continued partnership with the delegation at the local, state, and federal levels to protect and enhance the interests of its residents and businesses.

Accordingly, based on principles of fiscal responsibility, preservation of local control, and efficient service delivery and operations, the City of Riverside City Council provides overall policy guidance by adopting a legislative platform every two years.

The Legislative Platform (Platform) is developed in consultation with the City Council, Mayor, and City departments, to highlight Riverside's legislative priorities and to codify the City's positions on legislation, regulatory proposals, and funding opportunities. The Platform describes the City's goals on various policy matters as well as specific approaches it would support or oppose to achieve those policy goals.

The Platform, developed in uniformity with the City's Envision Riverside 2025 Strategic Plan, intends to supplement the Citywide Strategic Plan while building an efficient and flexible legislative advocacy strategy. The Platform provides strategic direction to City officials, staff and the City's legislative advocates, allowing the City to effectively take positions on policy issues that affect City operations.

City Specific Priorities

The City specific priorities, listed in alphabetical order, are focused on protecting the interests of the community and identifying resources available to enhance City programs and services.

Address Homelessness and Housing – There is a shortage of housing units that low-income people can afford and as the gap between income and housing costs grows, more people face homelessness. Homelessness is a persistent problem that impacts communities throughout the City of Riverside. According to the 2022 Homeless Point-in-Time Count and Survey, the City of Riverside comprise the highest number of homeless persons of any city in Riverside County (924). Of the 924 persons experiencing homeless, 514 of those people were unsheltered homeless residents. Despite taking a Housing First approach, homelessness continues to be prevalent across the City.

The City will work with lawmakers, statewide associations, local agencies and other stakeholders to advocate for legislation, budget actions, or administrative proposals that increase housing production and affordability, identify funding opportunities to address homelessness, increase shelter beds and services, and expand public awareness about homelessness and housing.

Expand Recreational Opportunities – The City of Riverside has 59 parks totaling 2,591.56 acres of developed parkland. There are an additional nine (9) parks that are undeveloped totaling 349.05 acres. Parks within the system include pocket parks, neighborhood parks, community parks, regional parks, wilderness parks, joint use and special use facilities. Across the various park types there are numerous recreational opportunities including sports fields, playgrounds, hiking trails and other recreational amenities.

The City will work with lawmakers, statewide associations, local agencies and other stakeholders to advocate for legislation, budget actions, or administrative proposals that increase park lands, expand adaptive and therapeutic recreation, and increase access and prioritize additional investments and improvements in the City's parks.

Increase Behavioral Health Infrastructure – Behavioral health, which includes mental health and substance use conditions, is an important part of the City of Riverside residents' overall health and well-being. Residents in Riverside and across the state report significant need for increased access to behavioral/mental health services. As the City is not a direct behavioral/mental health service provider, we rely on our regional partners (County, regional behavioral health center, community health workers, and more) to collaborate and implement programs needed by our residents. Cities and counties are on the frontlines of the state's behavioral health crisis and the supply of inpatient beds and behavioral/mental health services is not meeting the state's needs.

The City will work with lawmakers, statewide associations, local agencies and other stakeholders to advocate for legislation, budget actions, or administrative proposals that advance CARE Court, expand behavioral/mental health services, provide funding to build/retrofit acute psychiatric care facilities, increase the number of inpatient beds, expand access to community-based treatment, reduce homelessness, incarceration, and unnecessary hospitalizations, reduce barriers to care, and improve outcomes for people with behavioral and mental health conditions.

Revitalize the Santa Ana River – The Santa Ana River flows along the City of Riverside for 11 miles. Numerous development opportunities exist along the river, however barriers such as fire risks, invasive species, illegal habitations within the river bottom, safety concerns, and a lack of amenities, make improving the river a challenge.

The City will work with lawmakers, statewide associations, local agencies and other stakeholders to advocate for legislation, budget actions, or administrative proposals that identify opportunities for development along the Santa Ana River and create more recreational activities while preserving natural areas.

Underground the Riverside Transmission Reliability Project – The City of Riverside is the only city of its size in Southern California to have only one connection to the statewide electricity grid. This is concerning as the effects of climate change and increasing demand for power during extreme weather conditions and events make the power grid susceptible to a series of failures. Prolonged periods without power put the safety and well-being of our residents at risk of health complications and even death. The Riverside Transmission Reliability Project (RTRP) is a new 230 kV transmission line situated in Riverside County that will provide a critical second connection to the statewide power grid. RTRP is currently approved primarily as an above ground project, however due to variables such as fire risk mitigation, social justice, and environmental aesthetics, Riverside seeks to underground the transmission line within the City's jurisdiction.

The City will work with lawmakers, statewide associations, local agencies and other stakeholders to advocate for legislation, budget actions, or administrative proposals that provide funding and regulatory approval of undergrounding the Riverside Transmission Reliability Project.

State Legislative Priorities

The State priorities are driven by the City's core values of advancing diversity, equity and inclusion; furthering community trust; preserving local control over finances and decision-making; promoting innovation; and ensuring the City's long-term sustainability and resilience in the face of growing environmental, economic, and health and public safety challenges.
